Understanding The Protests

Materials by Illinois Autism Partnership at Easterseals Chicago ©2020. PCS® by Tobii Dynavox® All rights reserved. Used with permission.
Everyone is born different.
Some people are short. Some people are tall.
There are people of all different skin colors. There are people who don't like others who look different from them. This is called racism.
People have been hurt or killed because others do not like the color of their skin.
A man named George Floyd was killed on May 25th, 2020 because of the color of his skin.
When this happens, people feel angry and sad. They tell people how they feel by protesting.
It is never okay to treat people differently because of the color of their skin.
Some people protest safely and peacefully.
Some people protest loudly and dangerously.
Some people might even start fires and take things from stores. This is called looting.
This might make me feel scared, angry, or confused. It is okay to feel this way. I can ask for help if I need it.
When people protest dangerously, it is important to stay safe. I need to stay indoors or go to safe places with my family.
I can be kind to everyone, no matter their differences. This is always a safe choice. My family will be happy when I make safe choices.
Thank you to the following friends of IAP on this collaborative effort:

Delliah (Thomas) Adesanya, Social Worker, Easterseals Academy – Chicago, IL
Diamond K. Bogard, Special Education Teacher/Department Chair, Chicago Public Schools – Chicago, IL
LaToya Crowley, Social Worker, Easterseals Academy – Machesney Park, IL
Joanna Hawkins, Parent - Bryn Mawr, PA
Tiffany Simmons, Behavior Specialist, The Vanguard School – Malvern, PA
Other Contributors

Audio Recording by:
Peer Buddy Amani S., age 16, Wilmington, Delaware
For other visually-based lessons and social stories designed especially for learners with autism and other disabilities, subscribe to our YouTube channel!

Subscribe

iap@eastersealschicago.org

Illinois Autism Partnership builds the capacity of school districts statewide so they may provide effective programming for students with an autism spectrum disorder.